

April 27

Dear Jan,

I'm feeling a little nauseous right now. The last day or so, we've been away from the TOC. I had to go back to the hospital to get a liver function test for the UH. It was a good trip but we'll get back to that.

Just now, I woke up and took a shower to get ready for my shift on the radios when I realized that I left my computer in the medicals track earlier this morning. When I got to the aird station, I thought it was odd that no one was inside. The track was neatly packed up and cleaned after our 36 hour expedition, but I did not see my computer.

I went into the aird station which is in the just Scania building adjacent to us along the wall of the compound next to hangway 8. As I entered I noticed only eight of the medics, the doctor and the PA standing around one of the two litter sets up in the lobby. A Scania worker was there with a translator for an Iraqi citizen. I probably noticed the Scania worker just + didn't even field trains were. It was hard to grasp the layout of the camp in the dark. It looked like we were in a middle class subdivision. Free groves lined both sides of the road, well paved road. The setting was peaceful and I jumped down off the top of the 113 and walked around a dark building towards a bonfire that was burning in a rear courtyard. It was the whiskey C.P. I found a lieutenant Kimball, Captain Buro, and Captain Harker sitting around the fire chatting. I gladly pulled up a seat and discussed our situation, sports, world politics, and women for about an hour. It was a nice evening. At 9pm, I retired to the top of my 113 and went to sleep. I kept waking up since it was cold + I did not have a blanket my sleeping bag was back at the TOC since I had expected to be home - but it was a good day.

I also got your letter which brought me welcome cheer. The picture of you and Marion on the swing is great - you both look so happy + he seems to love the swing. Don't look demotivated.
