

said o.k., so you try to put out at least the same persona that you are accusing me of. Here is my argument. SSG Franklin drives a turquoise Mitsubishi Diamante with silver trim on the door handles and around the windows. In addition, all the windows in his car are tinted Limo black and he has a set of large, flashy rims. I stated that his car is "ghettofied," a fact that he has argued vigilantly.

Fine, I told him, establishing a persona goes beyond one simple aspect. I say there are many aspects of a persons behavior that go towards building a personal image. Now incorporate the fact that he is married to a black woman, drinks Hennessey and Paul Mauson (I don't even know if its spelled correctly) and his general manner, and I can't help but come to the conclusion that he fancies himself as a thug. He is still arguing with me even though I have given up the debate. I ended on the note that everyone has an image of themselves; a way in which people perceive themselves and they take action to try to propagate that notion. Think about it.

With that said, today is just another day. I am still bored and waiting to come home. I did receive your packages and the ones from my parents. Thank you very much; it is really nice to get a care package. Please pass my appreciation along to my parents as well. In the interests of mailing this to you today, I will stop here. I love you and Mason very much and am looking forward to meeting all three of you again.

Love,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "Christian", with a long horizontal flourish extending to the right.

Christian