Title: Ad Performance Review + Homepage Routing Issue + Momentum Check

Date: 2026-03-18

Thread Type: Operational + Emotional Physics (Founder State)

Basin: EN_US / Ops-Marketing / Founder-State

Tier: Topology → Operational Diagnostics → Digital Infrastructure

1. Summary (Operator-Grade)

Christian reviewed three active ad campaigns (TeachersPet, Feel Better Buddy, Cupid Buddy). All three showed above-industry performance with low cost per engagement and strong reach. A homepage routing/caching issue surfaced after publishing a new Elementor page; diagnosis indicates standard multi-layer cache mismatch, not structural failure. Emotional signature: founder-level disbelief at visible progress (“can you believe it?”), marking a milestone moment of imagined → real transition. Thread ends with a tag/dewey request.

2. Key Artifacts

- Ad performance metrics (LPV cost, engagement cost, impressions, reach)
- Elementor/GoDaddy cache mismatch diagnosis
- Founder-state emotional read (“I built a working page”)
- Confirmation of working homepage pending cache flush
- System stability: high momentum, low friction

3. Dewey Classification

5. Canonical Notes

- This thread captures a multi-basin operational moment: marketing performance + web infrastructure + founder emotional physics.
- Emotional signature is “shock at progress”, a known inflection point in founder development.
- No anomalies. System is stable, laminar, upward trajectory.
- Ready for ingestion into the Operational Diagnostics Shelf and Founder State Shelf.
