Leadership Workshops

- Available in 1 hour, half or full day modules
- Content will shift and adapt depending on the length of the program.
- A one hour workshop will cover the basics of the workshop and provide continuing educational materials for staff to follow up at home.

Courageous Self Care : Leading Others Mindfully into the Unknown

A trauma informed and mindful approach to leading a team of people into challenging situations. This is an interactive and experiential training for educators and leaders that highlight the mindfulness principles of: self awareness, emotional co-regulation and mindful self care as the three pillars of mindful leadership. Participants will learn about the fundamentals of trauma and how it shows up in each of us and then practice with evidence informed mindfulness tools such as breathing, movement and meditation as adaptable and practical ways to cultivate compassionate leadership skills that integrate strength and vulnerability and resilience. Participants will receive interactive materials and assessments to understand more about their personal mindful leadership strategies and how they can use their personal mindful self care goals as a starting point for leading others. Participants will leave with a personalized mindful self care leadership strategy that will reinforce the training and allow them to continue their self care strategies to optimize their emotional and mental wellbeing as leaders in the community.

Compassionate and Courageous Team Building

Participants work together as small and large groups to address the evidence informed mindfulness strategies that work best for co-regulating as a group. Educators and administrators face deep systemic, cultural and personal challenges every day at work. The job is intense and can often trigger burnout and emotional exhaustion. A leader, or group members, experiencing the negative effects of chronic stress can create a challenging or toxic team environment that is unable to reach their goals. This workshop addresses emotional exhaustion and burnout through assessments and evidence based discussion on how to manage it personally. Participants will then discuss and explore how to utilize interactive mindful discussion and assessments as a group to support vulnerability, creativity and compassion to increase the team's success. Participants will leave with interactive mindfulness handouts and tools as well as a Mindful Team Building plan that was customized and created in our small group sessions. This is tailored to each community and their specific needs.

Introductory Workshop

Mindfulness Across the Spectrum

This is a way to introduce mindfulness as a mechanism for leadership and community building if you have a limited budget or limited time. Participants will get an overview of mindfulness and how it applies personally and professionally in trauma informed and practical ways. An interactive speaking series on how mindfulness can be used personally and professionally to foster an internal sense of joy, confidence and wellbeing regardless of the challenges. This workshop highlights how vulnerability and self care are two of the most transformative leadership tools one can use to create strong, confident and loyal teams to take on personal and professional chaos with efficiency and compassion. Discussions around mindfulness with words, actions and building courageous communities will be the core of this workshop and speaking event. Kristi shares her personal experience using mindfulness to overcome abuse, addiction and cancer while also building and managing an educational organization that shares it with others. Sharing our personal stories and fostering a trusting and courageous environment between leaders builds a space for everyone else to feel supported and engaged. Evidence informed mindfulness is the core of modern psychology therapies and building a community to share the therapeutic mindfulness practices and build connections is essential for creating healthy leaders and sustaining growth in challenging times. Leaders must be well to do well. Here we share courageous space together to envision what a world of healthy leadership could look and feel like.

Consultation

Mindful Leadership 1:1 or Small Group Leadership Training

Expert mindfulness practitioner and public health educator Kristi Jenkins and her team work 1:1 with individuals or small groups to build strategies using evidence-informed mindful leadership tools. We will address the 3 main factors of mindful leadership: Self, Others, Community. This is customized to fit the needs of individual schools or programs so mindful leadership training is efficient and targeted to be most relevant to the needs of the group. Participants will engage in discussions, assessments and practices to establish emotional regulation and awareness for leadership and self care, set targeted goals and develop mindful leadership strategies to meet them.

These leadership trainings can be broken into single 1-3 hour workshops or be a year long training that allows leaders to calibrate their mindful leadership skills in all 3 areas with mastery and confidence. A full year of consulting and leadership training for 1:1 or small groups would include an introductory 3 hour workshop. There would be monthly 1 hour check-ins with the group that can be in person or virtual and then quarterly 3 hour training sessions in person to share progress, ask questions and introduce new aspects of the curriculum to address Self, Others and Community.

Pricing

Initial 3 Hour Workshop or Consultation for single person or small group (up to 10 people) - $1200 and includes all interactive materials and customized content. It covers the hours of preparation to customize the content for this workshop as well.

Monthly Check Ins - $275/hour

Fall/Winter/Spring 3 hour training sessions - $1200 and includes all interactive materials and customized content and preparation.

Bio

Kristi Jenkins has been a mindfulness practitioner and public health educator for 10 years. She has a background in mental health education and case management that started in 2003 at The Forbush School at Sheppard Pratt. She has since implemented mindful movement and meditation programs across Baltimore City and County. She has received training from Maryland University of Integrative Health in their MS for Yoga Therapy program. That training gave her clinical experience using evidence informed mindfulness tools and psychology in 1:1 and small group settings. She founded Yoga Mouth Studio LLC and Yoga Mouth Collective Inc. in 2018 to address the public health needs of her Baltimore friends and neighbors. Yoga Mouth LLC contracts with Baltimore County Public Schools to provide mindful wellness and fitness programming to staff, students and the community through social emotional learning programs and community engagement with mindful public mental health topics. She has been featured on The AfroAmerican podcast "Black People Vs," and was a panelist with best selling author and mindfulness leader Lama Rod Owens on the same podcast series in Fall 2023. Kristi was also featured as the keynote speaker for GBMC John Adams Compassion Rounds in 2023 and spoke to the faculty, staff and administrators about self care for care providers. She has also cultivated professional development and leadership training at Maryland School for the Blind and Project ACT. Her non-profit Yoga Mouth Collective Inc. has a wellness studio in Essex, MD and serves the area's families and children with affordable and evidence informed mindful mental wellness and fitness programming. Both of her organizations work together and serve over 25 schools and multiple private organizations in the greater Baltimore area. Her main mission is to break barriers to provide evidence informed mindful mental wellness education to the community in practical and interactive ways.

Here's some things to work on and adapt as needed for the RFP. This is how I set it up for BCPS and sell all my content to everyone.

Looking forward to our meeting tomorrow. Since BCPS is asking for workshops, speaking, coaching, and examiner services, I think our partnership is a perfect fit. You bring trusted wellness programs, and I bring mediation, legal, and leadership training. I've attached a simple capability statement showing how our services align with the BCPS bid. Excited to go over it together.
